Use of Agency Resources to Support Presidential Transition

We adhere to the conclusion in our December 14, 1992 Memorandum that, under the Presidential Transition Act of 1963, an executive agency or department may provide office space, secretarial services, and other support services to members of the transition team from agency appropriations without reimbursement from the transition appropriation when the provision of such space and support by the agency, rather than by the transition team itself, would minimize disruption to the agency's operations caused by the transfer of the leadership of the agency.

Our conclusion in the 1992 Memorandum is not affected by the October 12, 2000 amendment to the Transition Act. Direct support services and office space for those workshops and orientations that the amendment authorizes should be provided by GSA out of the appropriation for the transition, unless their provision by a particular agency would minimize disruption of the agency's mission or operations

MEMORANDUM OPINION FOR THE GENERAL COUNSEL GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION

This memorandum responds to your inquiry whether our 1992 opinion about the provision of office space and support services by executive agencies and departments for activities related to the transition of the President-elect continues to reflect our view of the law. Memorandum for C. Boyden Gray, Counsel for the President, from Timothy E. Flanigan, Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, Re: Use of Agency Resources to Support the Presidential Transition (Dec. 14, 1992) ("1992 Memorandum").¹ As discussed below, we adhere to the advice provided in that memorandum.

The 1992 Memorandum addresses the circumstances under which executive agencies and departments may provide office space and support services to members of the presidential transition team without reimbursement from the transition appropriation. The Presidential Transition Act of 1963, Pub. L. No. 88-277, 78 Stat. 153 (1964) (codified as amended at 3 U.S.C. § 102 note) ("Transition Act"), authorizes the General Services Administration ("GSA") to provide appropriate office space and support services to the transition team. At the same time, the Transition Act indicates that each individual agency's mission includes those activities necessary to minimize transition-related disruptions to the agency's work. Thus, general agency appropriations are available to further that mission. In reconciling the availability of both general agency and transition appropriations for transition-related office space and support services, we relied upon the principle of appropriations law that when Congress has provided for more than one appropriation in the same area, the appropriations generally are to be interpreted

¹The 1992 Memorandum clarified advice we provided during the 1988 the presidential transition. See Memorandum for Arthur B. Culvahouse, Jr., Counsel to the President, from Douglas W. Kmiec, Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, Re: Executive Agency Assistance to the Presidential Transition (Jan. 3, 1989)
