THE SUDDEN death of former Director J. Edgar Hoover on May 2, 1972, brought to a close an extraordinary career which lives on as a stirring example of single-minded devotion to perfect the FBI as an organization of high virtue and performance. His nearly 48 years at the reigns of the FBI turned it from an inept and corrupt-ridden agency into, as President Nixon noted in his eulogy to Mr. Hoover set out later in these pages, "...the finest law enforcement agency on the earth." Moreover, the impact of Mr. Hoover's remarkable accomplishments spread far beyond the FBI to enhance law enforcement agencies at all levels throughout this great country. In all this, FBI employees—new and experienced, former and present—may take exceptional pride. Were it not for their many sacrifices and tireless dedication to the principles Mr. Hoover so genuinely held, his legacy for superior FBI accomplishments or the FBI's continuing role as an example for the future of the law enforcement profession would not, as he so often acknowledged, have been possible.

The FBI has suffered a grievous loss in Mr. Hoover's death, but it dramatizes, as no other event could, that we are embarked in a new era of leadership and challenge for the FBI. Our standards and skills will be measured anew. FBI traditions compel us not to be found wanting in the tests ahead. Only in this way can we meaningfully honor the memory of "The Director."

THE COVER

Our June cover features a reproduction of Mr. Yoichi Okamato's photograph of Mr. Hoover in his office which conveys the strong shadows cast by the late Director's remarkable FBI career. The original photograph appeared in the January, 1972, issue of "Nation's Business."
John Edgar Hoover
1895-1972

The world paid tribute to his great qualities. It saw him as a superb administrator—and he was. It saw him as a brilliant investigator—and he was. It saw him as the incorruptible civil servant—and he was. It saw him as the nemesis of criminals—and he was. It saw him as the implacable foe of totalitarianism—and he was. It saw him as a stem, unyielding patriot—and he was. It saw him as the prototype of rectitude—and he was. It saw him as a man of taut self-discipline—and he was.

But we who loved him and whose privilege it is to serve in the fraternity of honor springing from his spirit will remember the little things which gave the FBI its soul. From his card index of memory, each will recall the personal touches which will live as long as life remains.
"He could have ended my career right then, but he gave me another chance. He was a just man." The eyes of the retired official did not see the flag-draped casket on which their gaze was fixed. They had turned back in time three decades to an error of inexperience—and the magnanimity of the man who had had to bear the brunt of that error. The words came again, softly, "He was a just man."

Another retired official, overwhelmed by memories, stood under the great dome and wept. A young man said, "He commended far more than he censured. He was like a father who could discipline and forgive."

Others remembered his care for the widows and orphans of the FBI family and his approval of arrangements for personnel contributions to "keep the paycheck coming" for those overwhelmed by dire illnesses. His kindnesses were relived in his thoughtful consideration of the aged and the ill and the time he gave to greeting relatives and friends.

His gracious touches were recalled—and his accessibility. One remembered that little more than a week before his death he had written a letter of appreciation to a cafeteria employee who by her attitude had made the dining area a pleasant place in which to be. He thought of the FBI as a "We" organization and the newest clerk soon came to feel himself a part of something special. Those who saw the selfless man at the helm spending himself in behalf of the Nation could not give other than their very best.
Some thought of his precision, his attention to details, his demand that each employee "Take care of the little things and the big things will take care of themselves." The thousand bits of humor were recalled, the occasional witty needling in "blue ink," the "OK H," the succinct "Yes," and the equally forthright "No."

We who knew him felt the love he bore for children and for dogs, for gardening and for growing things, and we saw the grace with which he bore his incredible burden of responsibility.

The world acknowledges his greatness. We pay tribute to the man—to the magnificent human being. All our lives we will remember.

The Employees of the FBI.

On May 8, 1972, President Nixon directed that the FBI Building presently under construction be designated as the J. Edgar Hoover Building.

The Honorable J. Edgar Hoover

John Edgar Hoover, who was known to his intimates as Edgar and to two generations of Americans as J. Edgar Hoover, was a man who epitomized the American dream of patriotism, dedication to duty and successful attainment.

From modest beginnings he rose to the pinnacle of his profession and established a world-wide reputation that was without equal among those to whom societies entrust the difficult tasks relating to enforcement of the laws.

The record is well known of how, as a young government lawyer, he caught the eye of Attorney General Harlan Stone, who was later to become Chief Justice. Mr. Stone placed him at the head of the department that was to become the FBI. When Edgar Hoover left his office for the last time on Monday evening, the portrait of Chief Justice Stone was the one ornament that dominated his office.

In this brief ceremony we do well to contemplate the qualities of this splendid man who dedicated his life to his country in a half century of unparalleled public service.

He was a man of high principle whose beliefs were based on Christian faith and he was steadfast in his beliefs throughout his entire life.

He was a man of great courage who would not sacrifice principle to popular clamor.

He was a man of vision, and his foresight led to the creation of an organization that was ready and able to deal with crisis after crisis in his long years of public service.

He was a man of unyielding integrity and his standards of personal conduct pervaded the entire organization so that its incorruptibility matched its efficiency.

He was firm in his demands for excellence but he always demanded more of himself than from others, and his high standards produced the institution that is, in a very real sense, the lengthened shadow of a man. At the same time he made sure that its members were independently resourceful as well as sternly disciplined, alert to constitutional rights as well as vigorous in the performance of tasks placed on them by the Congress.

He was a patriot in the old-fashioned sense of those who love their country and its ideals and history. He was not ashamed to express his patriotism and love of country or his Christian beliefs that guided his life.

His role, in perspective, will be seen as that of a man trained as a lawyer who always tried to strike the difficult and delicate balance of efficiency in enforcement of laws but within the law and within constitutional limitations.

Edgar Hoover fulfilled the American ideal of a man who made his own way and dedicated his unique talents to his country.

If the great institution he created is faithful to his standards of professional excellence, fidelity to law and dedication to the public interest, it will survive and go on in a world of conflict and turmoil.

I am proud to join in this salute to a great American who served his country so well and earned the admiration of all who believe in ordered liberty.

Eulogy for J. Edgar Hoover
by President Richard M. Nixon

May 4, 1972
Dr. Elson, Mrs. Eisenhower, Your Excellencies from the Diplomatic Corps, my fellow Americans:

Today is a day of sadness for America, but it is also a day of pride. America’s pride has always been its people, a people of good men and women by the millions, of great men and women in remarkable numbers, and once in a long while, of giants who stand head and shoulders above their countrymen, setting a high and noble standard for us all.

J. Edgar Hoover was one of the giants. His long life brimmed over with magnificent achievement and dedicated service to this country which he loved so well. One of the tragedies of life is that, as a rule, a man’s true greatness is recognized only in death. J. Edgar Hoover was one of the rare exceptions to that rule. He became a living legend while still a young man, and he lived up to his legend as the decades passed. His death only heightens the respect and admiration felt for him across this land and in every land where men cherish freedom.

The greatness of Edgar Hoover will remain inseparable from the greatness of the organization he created and gave his whole life to building, the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He made the FBI the finest law enforcement agency on the earth, the invincible and incorruptible defender of every American's precious right to be free from fear.

Yet, America has revered this man not only as the Director of an institution, but as an institution in his own right. For nearly half a century, nearly one-fourth of the whole history of this Republic, J. Edgar Hoover has exerted a great influence for good in our national life. While eight Presidents came and went, while other leaders of morals and manners and opinion rose and fell, the Director stayed at his post.

I recall that President Eisenhower, a Republican, and President Johnson, a Democrat, both strongly recommended, after my election, that I keep him as Director of the FBI.

He was one of those unique individuals who, by all odds, was the best man for a vitally important job. His powerful leadership by example helped to keep steel in America’s backbone, and the flame of freedom in America’s soul.

He personified integrity; he personified honor; he personified principle; he personified courage; he personified discipline; he personified dedication; he personified loyalty; he personified patriotism.

These are his legacies to the Bureau he built and the Nation he served. We can pay him no higher tribute than to live these virtues ourselves, as he lived them all of his years, to love the law as he loved it, and to give fullest respect, support and cooperation to the law enforcement profession which he did so much to advance.

When such a towering figure—a man who has dominated his field so completely for so many years—finally passes from the scene, there is sometimes a tendency to say, "Well, this is an end of an era."

There is a belief that a changing of the guard will also mean a changing of the rules.

With J. Edgar Hoover that will not happen. The FBI will carry on in the future, true to its finest traditions in the past, because regardless of what the snipers and detractors would have us believe, the fact is that Director Hoover built the Bureau totally on principle, not on personality. He built well. He built to last. For that reason, the FBI will remain as a memorial to him, a living memorial, continuing to create the climate of protection, security and impartial justice that benefits every American.

The good J. Edgar Hoover has done will not die. The profound principles associated with his name will not fade away. Rather, I would predict that in the time ahead those principles of respect for law, order and justice will come to govern our national life more completely than ever before. Because the trend of permissiveness in this country, a trend which Edgar Hoover fought against all of his life, a trend which has dangerously eroded our national heritage as a law abiding people, is now being reversed.

The American people today are tired of disorder, disruption and disrespect for law. America wants to come back to the law as a way of life, and as we do come back to the law, the memory of this great man, who never left the law as a way of life, will be accorded even more honor than it commands today.

In times past, in the days of the American frontier, the brave men who wore the badge and enforced the law were called by a name we do not often hear today. They were called "Peace Officers." Today, although that term has passed out of style, the truth it expressed still endures. All the world yearns for peace, peace among nations, peace within nations. But without Peace Officers, we can never have peace. Edgar Hoover knew this basic truth. He shaped his life around it. He was a Peace Officer without peer.

The United States is a better country because this good man lived his long life among us these past 77 years. Each of us stands forever in his debt. In the years ahead, let us cherish his memory. Let us be true to his legacy. Let us honor him as he would surely want us to do, by honoring all the men and women who carry on in this noble profession of helping to keep the peace in our society.

In the Bible, the book which Edgar Hoover called his "guide to daily life," we find the words which best pronounce a benediction on his death. They are from the Psalms: "Great peace have they which love thy law." J. Edgar Hoover loved the law of his God. He loved the law of his country and he richly earned peace through all eternity.

Army Commendation Medal

Tommy Lee Maddox, clerk, who recently returned from military duty to his job in the Tampa Office, is pictured with the Army Commendation Medal presented to him in February for exceptionally meritorious service and outstanding performance of duty while on active duty as a Communications Specialist with the 111th Military Intelligence group, United States Army Intelligence Command.
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR Clyde A. Tolson retired on May 3, 1972, following forty-four years of dedicated and loyal service to the FBI.

Mr. Tolson, who was born near Laredo, Missouri, graduated from Laredo High School in 1915 and from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Business College in 1918. He came to Washington, D. C., when he was eighteen to work as a clerk in the War Department and later served as confidential secretary to Secretary of War Newton D. Baker and successors until 1928. He attended night classes at The George Washington University, receiving an A.B. degree in 1925 and an LL.B. degree in 1927. He was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in 1928 and to practice before the Supreme Court in 1935.

In April, 1928, Mr. Tolson became a Special Agent of the FBI. His early assignments included the Boston and the Washington Field Offices as well as Chief Clerk at FBI Headquarters. In 1931, he was named Assistant Director of the FBI; in 1936, Assistant to the Director; and in 1947, Associate Director. He is a member of Sigma Nu and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

On June 2, 1965, Mr. Tolson received the President’s Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service.

All extend best wishes to Mr. Tolson in his retirement.
A

N EXCEPTIONAL FBI career ended when Assistant to the Director Alex Rosen retired in May, 1972, following 38 years of loyal and dedicated service.

Born in New York City, Mr. Rosen received his education in Ohio schools and graduated from Ohio State University in 1927. He received his LL.B. degree from the Cleveland Law School in 1930 and was admitted to the Ohio State Bar the same year.

Mr. Rosen entered on duty with the FBI as a Special Agent on October 16, 1933. He became Special Agent in Charge of the Cleveland Office in February, 1938, and was appointed an Inspector in June, 1939. He was made an Assistant Director in Charge of the Investigative Division in February, 1942, and in 1961 was appointed Assistant Director of the General Investigative Division. In October, 1971, Mr. Rosen became an Assistant to the Director in charge of investigative operations, with overall responsibility for the Domestic Intelligence, General Investigative, and Laboratory Divisions. During his long and distinguished career in charge of FBI investigations, a great number of the more important of which he personally gave on-the-scene direction to, the Bureau solved many of its most renowned cases.

Mr. Rosen is a member of the American Bar Association and the Federal Bar Association, as well as a life member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. FBI employees join to wish Mr. Rosen every happiness in his retirement.
SOMETIMES KNOWN AS "the First Lady of the FBI," "the sweetheart of the FBI," "the boss's boss," Miss Helen W. Gandy, personal secretary of the late J. Edgar Hoover for almost 53 years, brought to a close one of the most devoted, distinguished careers a Bureau employee has ever served. She retired from the Federal Bureau of Investigation on May 12, 1972.

Even in the early years of her career, which began in March, 1918, as a messenger, Miss Gandy readily established herself as dependable and efficient in the performance of her duties, no matter how large or how trivial the task. The following year her talents were directed toward the even more responsible position of confidential clerk in Mr. Hoover's Office. At that time, he was a Special Assistant to the Attorney General. When Mr. Hoover became Director of the FBI, then known as the Bureau of Investigation, Miss Gandy went along as his personal secretary, successively handling heavier and more demanding responsibilities, but never allowing the urgency of her work to camouflage her warm, sincere personality that has endeared her to employees throughout the FBI.

Miss Gandy can take immense pride in her long and faithful years of FBI service which have contributed so generously to the reputation and accomplishments of the Bureau. THE INVESTIGATOR Staff, Bureau friends and associates salute her and extend every best wish for her happiness in retirement.
A long and dedicated career came to a close on May 25, 1972, when Mr. Frank W. Waikart, Assistant Director of the Files and Communications Division, retired from the FBI.

Born in Washington, D.C., Mr. Waikart received his early and formal education there and obtained a Bachelor of Laws degree from Columbus University. He is a member of the Bar in the District of Columbia and has been admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court. In 1934 he joined the Bureau in a clerical capacity, and four years later was appointed a Special Agent. After New Agents' training, Mr. Waikart served in Charlotte, Birmingham, and New York before reporting to the Files and Communications Division, then known as the Records and Communications Division, in a supervisory capacity. After a transfer to the Washington Field Office, he was reassigned to the Seat of Government, where he served in a supervisory capacity in the Administrative Division. The next year, Mr. Waikart was assigned to the Files and Communications Division, and in 1959 he was named Number One Man and Inspector in Charge. Last January he became Assistant Director of the Division.

His many FBI friends extend every best retirement wish to Mr. Waikart and his wife.
Bureau employees, their families, and friends attended the 19th Annual Vesper Service.

19th Annual FBI

The 19th Annual Interdenominational FBI Vesper Service, attended by Bureau employees, their families, and friends, was held in The National Presbyterian Church and Center, Washington, D.C., on April 23, 1972. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the church, delivered the sermon entitled "The Sure Foundation." Dr. Elson, who is retiring soon, received best wishes from many of his friends in the FBI. Assisting in the service were: Assistant to the Director John P. Mohr, who delivered the welcoming remarks; former SA Stephen Sziarto, who read the Scripture Lesson; and SA Dean N. Lloyd, who was the soloist and Chairman of the Vesper Committee.

Following the Vesper Service, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall at the church, where refreshments were served by ladies of the FBI.
Washington's Cherry Blossom

This photograph proves that the cherry blossoms are always worth waiting for.
EACH YEAR, some 700,000 visitors to the Nation’s Capital engage in a guessing game with the weatherman in an effort to see the dramatic display of white and pink cherry blossoms along the Tidal Basin. In order to arrive in Washington, D.C., at the right time one needs a little luck in timing the visit. The cherry blossoms generally appear between March 20 and April 15; however, the exact date cannot be predicted with any degree of accuracy until about ten days prior to bloom and even then a sudden cold wave can set the blooms back as much as a week.

This year it was predicted the trees would be in full blossom on April 6. This prediction occurred during four very warm days the week of March 20, 1972. Mother Nature has a way of fooling people, and April 8 found the Cherry Blossom Princesses wrapped in coats in order to ward off temperatures in the low 30's as they rode in open cars along Constitution Avenue waving to those hardy souls viewing the parade. Not until April 12 were the trees in full bloom. Many tourists who planned their trip to coincide with Easter vacation were disappointed and did not see the breath-taking beauty provided by these trees.

All the pageantry and beauty in the present-day festival are the result of remarks made by Mrs. William Howard Taft soon after her husband became President. Mrs. Taft expressed an interest in planting Japanese cherry trees, and an alert member of the Japanese Embassy made her remarks known to his government. The result was a gift of 2,000 flowering cherry trees of a dozen varieties, presented to the American people in 1912.

Japan's courtesy to the United States in giving us these beautiful trees has now been repaid. The parent trees in Tokyo deteriorated during World War II from lack of care and, in 1952, the U. S. National Capital Parks sent cuttings from the trees along the Tidal Basin to Tokyo to replenish the parent stock. Now only one question remains. Can the Japanese predict when their cherry trees will blossom with any greater degree of accuracy than we Americans have shown?

Flower Arranger

After attending a ten-week course in flower arranging, clerk Donna Tomlinson of the Cleveland Division made these beautiful floral displays. It appears that the course was a success.
Ident Boasts Talent

The Identification Division boasts numerous employees talented in sewing and crocheting, and these four young ladies, modeling some of their beautiful creations, represent a small sampling of the talented personnel. Wearing her recently made white nylon shawl is Margaret Parker, top left. In addition to crocheting, she makes all of her and her daughters’ clothes, knits, and attends ceramics class. On the other hand, Pat Carson, top right, uses her crocheting skills to make clever rings, for which she also has made matching necklaces. Bertha Harkins, bottom left, and Karen Bythewood, bottom right, model their attractive pants suits. Bertha, in her jacket of orange and black-bonded knit and slacks of black-bonded knit, says she has never had formal training in sewing but made most of her wardrobe. Like Margaret, Karen makes clothes for herself and her daughter. She is wearing a slacks outfit fashioned from polyester knit of various shades of cranberry with a white background.

“Sweetheart of the Day”

Lovely Karen Owings, a stenographer in the Kansas City Office, was recently selected “Sweetheart of the Day” by a local radio station. She received as gifts two tickets to a well-known restaurant in Kansas City and two tickets to a movie.

“Presto” Creation

Gloria M. Dunlap of the Files and Communications Division enjoys sewing as much as some people enjoy reading. She joined the Bureau in June, 1966, and soon afterward purchased a sewing machine. Now, if she needs a new dress, out comes the machine and presto—a new outfit. The suit she is wearing is one of her latest “presto” creations.

He was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in 1949 and to the Connecticut State Bar in 1958. He has also been admitted to practice law before the United States Court of Military Appeals, the Supreme Court of the United States, the United States Court of Claims, and the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. He is also a member of the American Bar Association. While at The George Washington University Law School, he was a member of the Board of Editors of The George Washington University Law Review and was elected to the Order of the Coif.

Mr. Gray retired from the United States Navy in 1960 with the rank of Captain. Immediately prior to his retirement he served as Military Assistant to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with collateral duties as a Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Legal and Legislative Affairs. In January, 1961, he joined the law firm of Suisman, Shapiro and Wool of New London, Connecticut, for the general practice of law. During this time, he also organized and formed a small business investment company. He served this company for two years as Executive Vice President and General Counsel and then as President and Chief Executive Officer until September, 1967. During this period, the company's capitalization grew from $150,000 to $500,000. When the company was merged, he continued as Vice President and General Counsel of the surviving corporation, Capital for Technology Corp., with offices in New York, Pittsburgh, and New London. He also served as a member of the Advisory Board of Directors of the Hartford National Bank and Trust Company for Southeastern Connecticut.

On January 1, 1967, Mr. Gray became a partner of the firm of Suisman, Shapiro, Wool, Brennan and Gray. He continued in the active general practice of law until January, 1969, when he was appointed Executive Assistant to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). He departed there in 1970 to return to his law practice. Upon his departure from HEW, Secretary Robert H. Finch awarded him the HEW Distinguished Service Award.

Thereafter, in 1970, he also served as Special Consultant to the President's Cabinet Committee on Education. On December 18, 1970, the President nominated him as Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Division of the Justice Department. He was subsequently confirmed by the Senate.

He headed the Civil Division during 1971. In February, 1972, he was nominated by the President to be Deputy Attorney General of the United States. The Senate Judiciary Committee reported him for this position unanimously by a vote of 13-0. Before the confirmation by the full Senate, however, Mr. Gray's nomination was withdrawn on May 3, 1972, when he was designated Acting Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Mr. Gray has been active in all phases of civil and community affairs, including Chairman of the Community Chest in his home area, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Army-Navy Club, and Retired Officers Association.

Mr. Gray is married and has four children.
Betsy Myers, former employee and wife of Clay Myers of the Mobile Division, is very pleased with the four bowling trophies she won during one season.

Raymond L. Eckenrode, son of SA Raymond C. Eckenrode of Dallas, recently received an appointment to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. Ray, who served as president of his high school's student council and its disciplinary board, also led the school's cross-country track team to the Texas state championship. An honor student throughout his high school career, he was a member of the National Honor Society, elected to Merit's Who's Who In American High Schools, and also was named to the Society of Outstanding American High School Students.

SA Robert R. Hanni of the Minneapolis Division and his wife can be especially proud of their daughter, Michele, who was valedictorian of her senior class at Cathedral High School in St. Cloud. A member of the National Honor Society and her school's magazine staff, she participated in Girls' County and was named an outstanding American high school student. Michele plans to attend College of Saint Benedict's where she will major in French.

The recent behind-the-scene visit at the zoo left both Thomas Cooper and his father, SA Thomas J. Cooper of the Savannah Office, cheering for the strong grasp of the zoo handler who seems to have the four-year-old Bengal tiger under control.

Relentless waves of chlorophyll!
Bog down my shrinking gland of glee,
And honeysuckle-laden whips
Lash out with sharp dexterity
And zap their Spring lobotomy
On me.
HANGING UP THE GLOVES, UNDEFEATED

HE WAS ALWAYS MY CHAMPION!

EPILOGUE

I never met him,
but it seems that I knew him.
For more than two decades
he was an inspiration, honored and respected, in our home
and in our lives.
The message came!
in the middle of the night,
to our post in a foreign land.
There was no more sleep.
Only a sad restlessness, thinking of our loss.
When morning came, dim and gray,
I saw the unshed tears
glistening
in my husband's eyes.
